NUMBER OF LAPS

T1

The lap begins with the slowest corner on the 7.004km circuit – La Source, a tight right-hander.

T3

The run down to Eau Rouge and into Raidillon creates extreme suspension compression as the relief changes from downhill to uphill. Good engine power is required for the uphill drag.

T7

Using the gradient in the braking area to Les Combes, overtaking is easily possible here.

T10

A series of more technical corners at Bruxelles and Rivage, where mechanical grip is important.

T12

Pouhon is a fast flowing, double-apex left hand turn, which is exited flat out before the flow of Campus.

T15

The two right hand corners at Stavelot and Paul Frère are crucial to optimize momentum up through the blind Blanchimont corner which is flat-out. Precision in placing the car is paramount here.

T19

The final chicane, formerly known as the Bus Stop, is a tight right and left, which is an overtaking possibility on entry.
