GERMAN FACTS

The fabled German Autobahn network has no federally mandated speed limits, although a lot of sections have mandatory or temporary restrictions. However an estimate reported that 52% of the autobahn network is still unlimited.

Average annual meat consumption per person in Germany is 61kg. There are more than 1,500 different types of sausage, with common varieties including the Bratwurst, made of pork and herbs, Currywurst, served with curried ketchup, and Blutwurst, made with blood.

Angela Merkel, Chancellor of Germany since 2005, was ranked as the world's second most powerful person in Forbes magazine in 2012. In 2009, Mattel celebrated 50 years of Barbie by producing an Angela Merkel Barbie doll

SAFETY CAR PROBABILITY

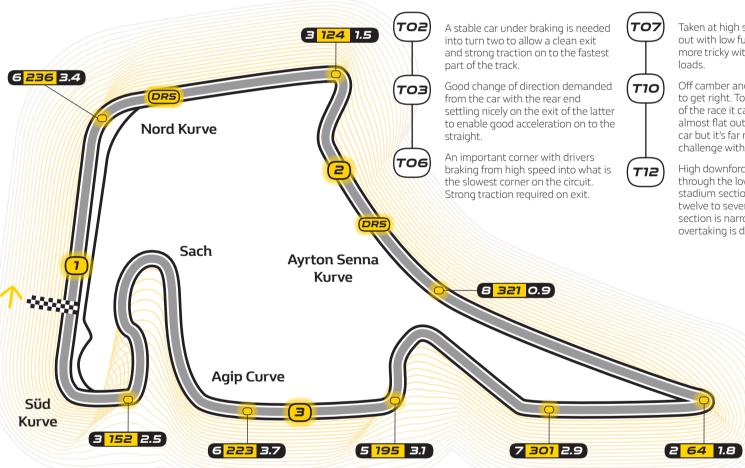

TOP SPEED (KPH)

GEAR CHANGES PER LAP

Taken at high speed, flat out with low fuel but slightly more tricky with heavy fuel

Off camber and a challenge to get right. Towards the end of the race it can be taken almost flat out with a good car but it's far more of a challenge with a heavy car.

High downforce required through the low speed stadium section of turns twelve to seventeen, this section is narrow meaning overtaking is difficult.

A TRIP DOWN MEMORY LANE

Renault has scored many wins at Hockenheim over the years, but arguably none was more popular – or indeed surprising – than that earned by Gerhard Berger for Benetton in 1997. It was to be the last F1 victory for the Austrian driver, who retired from the sport at the end of that season.
